History of the Foundation

The actions of the foundation started in the early 90's at the initiative of a group of people who informally contributed to the creation and support of the Cintilar orphanage in Brazil.

Then, what had begun as the initiative of a few people has become a foundation attracting donors who were concerned about the good use of their donation. Over the years indeed, the increasing number of donors and the development of potential aid actions required the creation of a formal structure to facilitate the collection of donations and the transfer of funds.

Thus, Appel Fondation operates with a simple structure to minimize the operating costs while seeking to support small organizations whose concrete results are verifiable. Each project is monitored by a volunteer who is in regular contact with the leaders and intervening parties of the organizations involved.

Current Project

An Ayurveda Centre associated with an Ashram-Farm in India

The project consists in the creation of an Ashram-Farm where destitute women will be accommodated so that they can attend to orphaned children living there. The farming of the land will enable residents to gradually become autonomous with their crops. Rooms will be reserved for the creation of a centre for Ayurvedic treatments. Furthermore, international visitors will be welcome to receive Ayurvedic treatments, known for their effectiveness (therapeutic treatments and cures for fitness, rejuvenation, etc.) or to take courses in Ayurveda, thus providing a basis for the funding of the project.
